

Youth Legislative Development Conference

- Learn the American political tradition
- Participate in a mock senate and draft legislation
- Enjoy tours of D.C. attractions and historic monuments
- Explore a Christian's role in politics and society
- Attend an exclusive congressional briefing
- Make friends with like-minded students
- Meet political leaders and hear how their faith influences their work

Cost: Student participants are responsible only for a modest registration fee and personal expenses, including souvenir shopping and personal transportation to/from Washington, D.C. The full conference costs (i.e., lodging, meals, sightseeing) are covered through AACS scholarships that are funded by generous donors. Please see your school administrator or principal for application details.

Attendees to the Youth Legislative Development Conference (YLDC) must be nominated by their state association office. If you are interested in attending the YLDC, ask your high school principal to contact your state association office.

Don't Miss
an incredible opportunity!
